

Dry cell battery poisoning:

Dry cell batteries are a common type of power source. Tiny dry cell batteries are sometimes called button batteries. Swallowing a dry cell battery (including button batteries) or breathing in large amounts of dust or smoke from burning batteries has harmful effects and can be dangerous or even fatal. Don't delay in seeking medical attention.

Symptoms depend on what type of battery or item swallowed:

Decreased mental ability
Irritation or burns in the mouth
Muscle cramps
Slurred speech
Swelling of the lower legs, ankles, or feet
Spastic walk
Tremor
Weakness

Household Poisons:

Put the following items out of reach and/or in a bathroom cabinet that you can lock, because these can all be harmful to your child:

- bathroom, shower or tile cleaners
- deodorants
- lipsticks and other make-up, including facial toner and nail polish remover
- medicines
- moisturizers and gels
- mouthwash, perfume, hand sanitizer and aftershave – these can have a high percentage of alcohol
- shampoos, conditioners, soaps and body wash, especially those with food smells
- toilet cleaners – fluid and solid.
- Detergent pods

Other Items in the bedroom or family area that can poison include:

- air fresheners
- alcohol
- bubble-blowing solution
- essential oils – for example, eucalyptus oil
- glues
- E cigarette cartridges
- Anti-freeze

Datura Plant

They are dangerous to those who choose to ingest parts of them, such as might happen to those hoping for a hallucinogenic experience, or perhaps ingested some by accident.

If someone eats the seeds the following can happen: respiratory depression, arrhythmias, fever, delirium, hallucinations, anticholinergic syndrome, psychosis, and even death if taken internally.

As scary as it sounds some people do use it as a recreational drug, according to the internet.

Cacti found mostly on the gentle slopes and plains near the Franklin Mountains. Be extra safe when hiking as you can encounter various cacti along the way.

Cacti are NOT poisonous to humans. The only time cacti are dangerous is if you eat them, which can cause stomachaches and diarrhea. Some people may have allergic reactions to the needles on cacti, so it's best to avoid touching or eating them.
